INSECTS OF ARIZONA. Deadly Creatures That Terrify the

Inhabitants. Dr. Richard E. Kunze, a physician of New York city, has just completed a campaign of several months among the insects of Arizona, and is so greatly charmed with Colorado that he has decided to take up his residence in this state. Dr. Kunze talks in a most entertaining manner of his trip through Arizona, and the peculiarities of insect life in the far southwest.

"Arizona," said he recently, "is the El Dorado of the entomologist. The variety of insect life in Arizona has for years made the region a favorite field for students and collectors, but every year new species are found, and new species will be found for years to come. I began work in Arizona in the first week of April last, in the vicinity of Tucson. During the season I worked. every day, for the naturalist knows no Sunday when he is in the field. He must take the insects in their prime. I succeeded in collecting between 60,000 and 75,000 specimens. I could have collected a much larger number in certain directions, but did not do so.

"The least number of any one species collected by me during the summer was 100. I gathered in only 100 of the scorpion, centipede and tarantula famlly."

"Scorpions," ejaculated a listener. "I should think they would bite."

The naturalist laughed. "Yes, they might bite, if they had a chance; but it is the business of the collector not to give them a chance. You see, we are supplied with all sorts of paraphernalia for handling the different insects. Never let an insect seize you. Do the seizing yourself. Fear is out of the

"The tarantula hawk," said the learned naturalist, "is one of the peculiar little animals abounding in Arizona. The hawk preys upon the tarantula, hence his name. He is built for hunting them, and he does it to perfection. You can see the hawks crawling along the ground in search of their prey. They have long legs and move like lightning when a tarantula heaves in sight. In an instant the hawk pounces upon the poor tarantula, and before the victim is aware of the danger the deadly weapon of the enemy is implanted in his body. The hawk simply deposits a poison inside the body of the tarantula, which paralyzes him. In connection with the poison he deposits an egg, which proceeds to hatch out, and a caterpillar is the result. The young caterpillar feeds on the body of the tarantula until he is ready to undertake housekeeping on his own account. There are two species of tarantula hawks, distinguished by the color of their wings. A peculiar thing is that each species has its particular kind of tarantula."-Denver News.

POWER OVER BRUTES. A Gypsy Who Fascinates Skunks,

Minks and Foxes. Nordorf Breek, a gypsy, went to Northwood, N. Y., a year ago, and ever since has amazed the natives by his success in approaching wild animals, even coming up with a fox, and handling it as if it were a pet dog.

Breek lives by himself in a shanty on the road to the old Pardy place, and bluejays and squirrels, mink and rabbits gather about his door to feed on the scraps that he throws to them, or to listen to his voice, which is so peculiar that many Northwood men say it makes them shiver. If anyone misses a dog in the vicinity of Northwood a visit to Breek's eamp usually reveals the whereabouts of the brute, and five eats are constantly hanging about anxious for a word or caress from the strange man, although they all belong to families who feed them and pet Breek laughs when anybody asks him about his animal friends, and the other ley in their carriage were Chairman evening, when a skunk came waddling into the store at his heels, Dave Jones felt called upon to protest. Breek picked the skunk up. Everybody drew dison Porter and Mr. C. C. Glover, of away hastily, but the expected conse- this city. The other members of the quences did not come. Breek took the large party that accompanied Maj. tion. skunk to the door and dropped it from the stoop into the road. He came back, purchased a side of bacon and some cheese, and made his way up the road, followed by the skunk.

The Northwood woodsmen would never believe before Breek came that foxes had gone to men for protection from dogs on their trails, as foxes are said to have gone to Thoreau. Now seven persons have seen foxes seek shelter with Breek, and there are no skeptics.

It is believed that Breek's eyes are largely responsible for his power over animals. They are rather dark, full of lustre, and direct in their gaze. While not exactly fierce, they are rather menacing. A dog, angry at a child for having stepped on its tail on the store porch one day, started to snap at it. Breek said something quickly, and the dog, giving one glance at the man's eyes, slunk away with its tail between its legs .- N. Y. Sun.

The Crowd in Waiting Set Up a Cheer When McKinley's Well-Known Figure Appeared-The Party Was Then Escorted to the Ebbitt House.

WASHINGTON, March 3.-Wm. Mcof the United States.

It was just 11 o'clock when the Mc-Kinley special rolled into the Pennsylvania station exactly on time. Outside the station building an immense crowd had gathered.

Just before the arrival of the Mc-Kinley train Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, pass through the gates leading to the track platform. The staff officers were in all the brilliancy of full dress uniform and presented an imposing apand Pennsylvania avenue. Around the end of the station where the train entered was another good sized gathering, held in check by a high fence and a squad of policemen. When the well-known figure of Maj McKinley appeared on the platform the crowd set up a cheer. Maj. McKinley doffed his silk hat in response, and then stepped to the platform to receive the greetings of the reception commit tee. Half a dozen policemen marched ahead and on the flanks of the president-elect's large party as it proceeded down the platform towards 'the ladies' entrance. Maj. and Mrs. McKinley were immediately preceded by Col. Barrett and Mr. Parker, of the reception committee.

The procession proceeded very slowly and with dignity. The task of getting the presidentelect's carriage started from the station was the work of a moment only, and before the crowd knew it he was rapidly disappearing up Pennsylvania avenue. With Maj. and Mrs. McKin-Bell and Secretary Porter, while in the following vehicle sat "Mother" McKinley, Col. Britton, Mrs. J. Ad-McKinley to Washington took the other carriages.

Soon after the arrival at the Ebbitt house, Maj. and Mrs. Mckinley were figuratively showered by lists of white paste board but they received a few intimate friends only. Gen. Russell A. Alger was among the callers. Mrs. McKinley was very much fatigued and retired to her room for a rest in preparation for the dinner at the white house Tuesday night. President Cleveland recovered from his rheumatic attack Tuesday evening sufficiently to assist Mrs. Cleveland in entertaining Mrs. McKinley and the president-elect at dinner. At the last moment Mrs. McKinley was still to much fatigued to attend the dinner and her husband went alone. This was purely an informal and domestic affair to which no others were bidden, and at 7:30 c'clock the three persons in whom the interest of the entire United States is just now centered, sat down to a beautiful repast in the small dining room of the executive mansion.

A century's stupendous growth largely due to the assimilation and thrift of millions of sturdy and patriotic adopted citzens attest the success of this generous and free-handed policy, which while guarding the peoples interests, exacts from our immigrants only physical and moral soundness and a willingness and ability to work. "A contemplation of the grand re-

Referring to the claims that the quality of recent immigrants is undesirable, President Cleveland says the time is quite within recent memory when the same thing was said of imwith the members of his staff, arrived | migrants who, with their descendants, question. We face the music and take at the station and were permitted to are now numbered among our best

It is said that too many immigrants settle in our cities, thus dangerously increasing their idle and vicious popupearance as they lined up to salute the lation. This is certainly a disadvanpresident-elect when he stepped tage; it can not be shown, however, from the train. Meanwhile the that it affects all our cities, nor that it crowd outside the station had is permanent, nor does it appear that increased. It blocked up Sixth street | this condition, where it exists, demands for a few yards between the station as its remedy the reversal of our present immigration policy.

> The claim is also made that the influx of foreign laborers deprives of the opportunity to work those who are better entitled than they to the privilege of earning their livelihood by daily toil. An unfortunate condition is certainly presented when any who are willing to labor are unemployed. But so far as this condition now exists among our people, it must be conceded to be a result of phenomenal business depression and the stagnation of all enterprises in which labor is a factor. With the advent of settled and wholesome financial and economic governmental policies and a consequent encouragement to the activity of capital, the misfortunes of unemployed labor should to a great extent at least be remedied. If it continues, its natural consequences must be to check the further immigration to our cities of foreign laborers, and to deplete the ranks of those already there. In the meantime those most willing and best entitled ought to be able to secure the advantages of such work as there is to do.

The educational test contained in the bill receives close attention on this particular point. Mr. Cleveland says, in his opinion, it is infinitely more safe to admit a hundred thousand immigrants who, though unable to read and write, seek among us only a home and opportunity to work, than to admit of one of those unruly agitators and enemies of governmental control, who can not only read and write, but delights in arousing by inflammatory speech the illiterate and peacefully inclined to discontent and tumult. Violence and disorder do not originate with illiterate laborers. They are rather the victims of the educated agitator. The ability to read and write as required in this in and of itself, affords in my opinion, a misleading test of contented industry and supplies unsatisfactory evidence of desirable citizenship or a proper appreciation of the benefits of our institu-

WASHINGTON, March 4.-William McKinley. of Ohio. was Thursday installed as president of the United States for the term, of four years, continuing until the fourth of March, 1901, and Grover Cleveland for the second time passed from the exercise of the high office of president and re-entered private life. In his capacity as ex-president he has but one living contempary, his immediate predecessor, Benjamin Harrison, All the others who within the last 30 years, by election or succession, have presided over the destinies of the great American republic-Lincoln, Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Arthur-have joined the silent majority.

Incidental to the actual assuming of office by the president, and slightly preceding it in point of time, Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey (a gentleman not heretofore prominent in national politics) took the oath of office as vice president of the United States and was installed as ex-officio presiding officer of the

The proceedings of the day were characterized by all the imposing spectacular effects and demonstration of popular interest, which have become a growing feature of inaugural ceremonies, as the nation has advanced in population and wealth. Between forty and fifty thousand men formed in procession, partly military, partly civic, and escorted the retiring president and president-elect to and from the capitol. At least 20,000 people witnessed the administration of the oath of office on the eastern portico of the capitol and listened or attempted to listen to the delivery of the new president's brief inaugural address, and at night a gorgeous state ball at which the president and vice president will be present will close proceedings.

The graceful interchange of courtesies between the outgoing and incoming officials, which has only twice been intermitted-once when bluff John Adams packed his gripsack and slipped out at the white house at daylight on the fourth of March to avoid shaking hands with his hated federalist succesthe illustrious Jefferson, and within living memory when Grant, because of his strained personal relations with Andrew Johnson, drove in his buggy from the old war department to the capitol, accompanied only by Gen. John A. Rawlins, his chief of staff-were on this occasion exercised to the full extent. Mr. Cleveland and Mr. McKinley rode side by side to and from the capitol. They had dined and they lunched in each other's company on the day in which they transferred the government of this great nation, the one to the other. An additional air of cordiality was infused into the proceedings by the similarity between the views entertained by the retiring president and his cabinet on the financial questions and those upon which the successiul candidate of the republictruth felt more gratification probably in installing at the capitol as his successor the leader of an opposing political party than he cumstances the leader chosen by his own political associates as their candidate for the presidency. HON. ASA S. BUSHNELL. Marshal Second Division.

The grand marshal entrusted with the direction of to-day's pageant was Gen. Horace Porter, formerly of the staff of Gen. Grant. His organizing skill had been tested in peace as well as in war. The escort, largely military, but also conhouse, the executive mansion. The civic organizations which followed the president and ex-president on their return journey from the capitol to the white house were formed on streets adjacent to the capitol grounds. President-elect McKinley, who had left his handsomely fitted-up suite of rooms at the Ebbitt house sufficiently early to pay his call of ceremony on the retiring president, was driven to the white house, escorted by the senate committee appointed for the purpose, where, in one of the handsome state apartments, he was received and welcomed by President Cleveland and his cabinet. Then the two presidents descended the white house steps, and together they entered a four-horse carriage. Mr. Cleveland sitting to the right, and amid the booming of canon, the clatter of cavalry, the deep, hoarse rumble of artillery, the measured tramp of many columns of infantry and the blare of innumerable bands, the march to the capitol began. In another four-horse carriage following the rode Vice-President-Elect Hobart and the senators deputed to escort him to the scene of his future duties. Then in a long stream of carriages came the distinguished guests. The president's personal escort was troop A, of Cleveland. Gen. Nelson Miles, commanding the United States army, and Rear Adm. George Brown, ranking officer of the navy, in full uniform, rode immediately after the presidential party. The second brigade of the first division consisted of the superbly drilled and handsomely equipped national guard of the District of Columbia. ### THE CONDITION

Of the Striking Miners of the Aragon Mine Deplorable.

LANSING, Mich., March 4.—Harry Barter, president of the Michigan Federation of Labor, returned to Lansing Wednesday morning from a trip to investigate the condition of the miners of the Aragon mine, on strike there. He says a deplorable state of affairs exists, and 1,000 persons will die of starvation if relief is not soon provided. He has drawn a concurrent resolution which was introduced in the house Wednesday afternoon providing for a special committee to proceed at once to Norway for the purpose of bringing about a failure to convene the representatives of the settlement of the difficulties between the mineowners and miners, or recommend some method of relief.

THE CRADLE SHIP.

Ho! you little sailor, Quickly get aboard; Snowy sails are hoisted. Now the ship's unmoored! Lo! the craft is rocking. You the port so grand: Land of radiant visions-Slumberland!

Mother is the captain, Baby is the mate: Drowsy eyes are closing. For they cannot wait. Oh! the sights and treasures On that golden strand! Sail we to the haven-Slumberland!

Gems of rarest beauty. All for baby dear. Set the watch, and safely. To the land we steer, Rocked by gentle breezes, Ever sweet and bland: Oh! the blissful harbor-Slumberland!

Stars above are twinkling. But they soon will fade: Dawn will soon be blushing Over vale and glade. Ho! you little sailor. Then you'll leave the strand, Sailing back from yonder Slumberland!

Angus caught sight of two white bands, then of a whiter face, surrounded by clustering hair, as it rose above the surface.

"Courage! Courage!" he cried, and with all the might in his powerful frame he plowed through the water, nearing the form of the one he loved. Clara heard that cry, and on the instant the thought passed through her brain: "I am saved.'

Then she sank again-down, down; strange roaring sounds were in her ears, but her lips were firmly closed.

As that loved form sank a second time from view, so also did the form of Angus Bruce, and when he reappeared on the river's surface he bore in his arms the form of Clara Hill.

He clasped her round the waist with his left arm, and sustained himself on the water with his right.

Her arms were around his neck, clinging as will a drowning person to any thing in reach.

"Courage! Dear heart! Courage Clara Belle! don't clasp me quite so tight, alas, that I must say that! There, so-that will do.

"Hey! Calvin, quick! Mate, quick!" "Unloose me, Angus, and let m drown, else will you drown too."

"Unloose you, Clara Belle? not while life lasts. You are dearer to the heart of Angus Bruce than life itself-why we float the river's surface like a cork; laugh at your fears, you'll never drown, while clinging to Bruce." "Oh, Angus! Angus! but for you, I should have never risen more."

"Aye, Clara Belle, and but for that lucky fall, I would never have known the happiness of this hour; it will go with me through life, yes, even to the grave." "Oh, Angus! Angus!"

With her helm hard-a-port, the sch oner had rounded to, and now lay ath art the river, her sails flapping and emptied of the breeze.

Caivin Stewart, the mate, had lowered the yawl, and with two good men was pulling to the rescue.

Vhen he reached them Angus lifted Clara, with the help of Calvin, into the yawl, and was soon seated beside her. When the boat reached the side of the schooner, a rope ladder was hanging to the rail, by which to ascend to the deck, and Herbert Lathrop was standing by

"Are you strong enough to climb the ladder, Miss Hill?"

"Oh yes, my brave rescuer, certainly." Then glancing up, she saw at the head of the ladder Herbert Lathrop leaning over the rail. "But you go first, captain, and help me over the rail, for l like not Herbert Lathrop, and but for him, I should not have taken this bath.' "I am glad of that," said Angus.

"O, which? that I like not Herbert, or that I took the bath?" "Of-of both, Miss Hill," said Angus as he climbed to the deck. "Oh, captain!"

As Angus mounted the deck, Herbert said: "A brave act, Capt. Bruce, a brave

"Oh no," said Angus, "none but a eoward would see a lady drown; had I stood where you did, when she went overboard, she would have little more than been immersed; now she is well soaked." Herbert hated Angus Bruce from that things by half," and Herbert bit his lips, as Angus lifted Clara over the railing, and, followed by the weeping Fannie, bore her to the cabin.

"Well, you have done your duty, cap

"Don't cry, Fannie! don't cry! the time to ery has passed. I am quite over my scare now-only wringing wet."

"My sister Jennie," said Angus, "accompanied me to Charleston on my last trip down the coast. You will find in the bureau there, dresses and clothing that she left aboard-I beg you will speedily make use of such as please you; there is wine in that decanter-now I will go and put on dry toggery, as this is too wet, even for a sailor."

When Angus returned to his berth and changed his clothing, he thought of some of the language he had used, under the excitement of the moment, while he was rescuing Miss Hill, and felt somewhat abashed.

"Clara Hill is not for me," he said, "but by the gods, she will never find a heart that loves her more-I have saved | can you be my wife?" har life for some more fortunate man."

in her mind the words:

"Angus Bruce loves me! Angus Bruce loves me! This," she thought, "is the love of a man; with such a one I could be happy, but that would never do-what would my father and my brother say?—yes, or what would they do, should I even think of wedding Angus-even my mother, I think, would revolt to see her daughter wed a pilot's son, and the captain of a schooner; and yet I knew when I heard his voice: 'Courage! courage! Clara Belle,' that I loved him; yes, I do love him as fervently as he loves me-beside him, Herbert Lathrop is a cipher. Oh, Angus! you saved my life, you have my heart; would I could give you my hand, But not so, your image will be graven on my heart my whole life long, but I will be the bride of my father's friend, John Loyd, and now I care not how soon-for then will there be an impassable barrier between the man I love and may not marry, and me."

An hour later the two girls were on the deck, gazing back in the direction of the recent disaster; Clara clad in the Scotch plaid of Jennie Bruce.

"Ah," said Angus, as he approached them, "I have aboard a Scotch lassie

"Miss Hill," he continued, aside to Clara, and a deep blush suffused hi cheek, "pray pardon me for any words uttered, when I knew not but that they might be the last"

"Speak not of pardon, Angus Bruce but for you I should be now lying at the river's bottom."

"This locket, Miss Hill, came from your neck while in the water, when I grasped you first; the slender chain parted and it remained in my hand. I now return it."

"Have you opened its face?" "Oh no, I would not take that lik erty."

"Then do so now." He opened it, and an exclamation of pleasure fell from his lips. "Do you recognize the lady, captain?"

"Oh, yes, Miss Hili, it is your lovely "Keep it, captain, in memory of the worthless life you saved;" and with tears in her eyes, as she saw the look on the face of Angus, Clara Hill descended to the cabin. It was four o'clock when the schooner landed at her pier, and John Loyd's carriage was in waiting. "Good-by, Capt. Bruce. When do you return to Orton?" "I take a cargo here, Miss Hill, fo

Angus watched the carriage until turned the corner; then, turning to now two years, said:

"Now, Calvin, get everything in readi ness for unloading. I will go ashore and see the consignees. We must unload to-night."

Calvin was a man of Bruce's statur who had appeared in Smithville two years before. He had stated that he had been shipwrecked, and as he was a thorough seaman, bold, fearless and well acquainted with the coast, Angus, having found him trustworthy, made him second in command on board the Clara Belle.

That night they discharged their cargo, and Thursday night were again under way, en route for Charleston har

At the time he entered the front door, Aunt Mag, the mulatto housekeeper and old family servant of the banker, was his mate, Calvin Stewart, a man of going the rounds to see that the doors some 30 years, who had been with him were secure for the night. As she was advancing, when just in the shadow of the winding stairs, she caught sight of Herbert Lathrop in a listening attitude at the parlor door. Instinctively she halted, and had seen his pantomime of actions as he stood there, and as he advanced she had observed the passionate look on his face, as well as the clenched hand shaken at the door; and when he was ascending the stairway, just opposite her, as she stood crouching in the recess, she caught the words: "Your life, my uncle! yes, your very

THE PLEASURES OF HOPE. "Yes, and at Orton; let our marriage Far Excel Those That Are Afforded by

Poets have written and troubadours have sung of the pleasures of hope, and philosophers and sages have indulged in retrospective musings on the pleasures of memory. The question is sometimes asked: Which affords the greater amount of happiness, hope of memory?

As an answer to this question, it may be said that much depends upon the individual, the outlook for pleasure and the possibilities to which the thoughts

Where one has had a blissful and perfeet childhood and early life, and comes in later years to disappointments, crosses and losses that are so often met with on life's pathway, it is quite likely that memory affords much keener satisfaction than hope.

Contemplation of kindnesses in the past, of good deeds done, of delights in which loved ones may have had a share, are sources of trac gratification. On the other hand, the pleasures of hope amount in many cases to an ecstasy that nothing in memory can approach. Castles in the air are built and tenanted, the golden Arcadia of an unfettered imagination is spread out before the mind and bright dreams, fill the waking and sleeping hours. ### Market Value of Cast-Off Teeth.

I wonder whether all my readers know the value of old artificial teeth when they contain gold in any quantum and the state of th tity? If they do not, I should advise 25 cent Bond, imperforate..... them to get good advice on the subject before selling, for there is an enormous demand for such articles in the advertisement columns of the papers, and I suspect that a good deal of swindling is done in the trade. There is one advertisement in which those who have teeth for sale are recommended to apply to a manufacturing dentist rather than to a wardrobe buyer. A lady responded to this advertisement the other day, and got an offer of one pound for her set, but, being dissatisfied with the offer, she took the goods to a pawnbroker, who at once offered her £2 14 shillings for them. If, therefore, a manufacturing dentist is a better purchaser than an old clothes merchant, a pawnbroker would seem to have the advantage of both.-London Truth.

PARIS, KY,

MILLERSBURG, KY., May 4, '96. MESSRS. MILLER & COLLINS, Agents, Paris, Kentucky.

Gentlemen :- I have had the Page Woven Wire Fence on my farm for about eighteen months and am well pleased with it. It has proved to be all that is claimed for it. It turns all kinds of stock and is as tight as it was the day it was put up and has stood some severe tests. A horse of one of my neighbors fell across the fence a few months ago and was not taken off for several hours but when taken off the fence went back to its place all right with the exception of a few staples. During the storm of April 24th a good-sized tree was blown across the fence and bent it down to the ground. As soon as the tree was cast off the fence went up all right and was as good as ever with the exception of one broken wire and a few staples out

I am so well pleased with the fence that I am going to put up more of it Respectfully, right away. WM. BECRAFT. (5my-tf)

Milk rich in fat can be made to yield cheese of the same composition as milk poorer in fat in one of two ways: (1) by adding skimmilk to, or (2) removing fat from, the richer milk; then the cheese yield for a pound of fat becomes the same. The difference in the cheese yield of milk fat in the case of poor milk over richer milk is a skimmilk difference, and the extra yield of cheese for fat is the poorest kind of skimmilk cheese. It is shown that paying for milk according to weight of milk furnished is exceedbasis for payment, because it gives poor milk an undue advantage. A critical comparison of all methods of paying for milk, suggested or in use, leads most emphaticaly to the conclusion that milk fat affords the fairest practical basis to use in paying for milk for cheese making. In conclusion it is pointed out that where the milk fat basis is used, there is no tendency to adulterate and defraud, while there is every encouragement to produce milk of better

These dogs belonged to the Kurds who had settled in villages and were enormous brutes. They usually wore huge collars, studded with nails, so that if a wolf flew at their throats he was received by a mouthful of sharp points and could not get a grip.

I once bought a magnificent Kurd dog for four shillings. He was so fierce that I dared not go near him. Kindness, I thought, would have its due effect on him in a few days, so I had a rope fastened to his collar and gave the other end of the rope to a mounted Zaptieh. The last thing I saw of the dog was a frightened horse and Zaptieh disappearing in the distance, and the animal fetching a compass for his native village with what Artemus Ward once describer as "a select assortment of trouser patterns" in his mouth.

These dogs are so intelligent that they seem to understand the slightest sign from their masters. I once saw my man buy a fowl for our evening meal from a Kurd and pay down the money. Then he asked for the fowl "Oh, there it is, Effendi," said the Kurd pointing to a limp mass of feathers standing on one leg just outside the hut; "all you have to do is to catch and kill it." My man, like Agag, "walked delicately" toward the fowl, and the limp bundle of feathers immediately "put out" in the direction of Sivas. My man went after it, sword in hand with the fell intention of slicing of the fowl's head and bringing back its gory body in triumph. A big Kurd dog immediately started after my man, who gained rapidly upon the fowl. Just as he was about to slice off its head an ominous growl from the rear warned self. The fowl stopped, limply watched driven off the dog he again pursued the fowl, which seemed to remember an important engagement in the direction

I could not stand very long without feeling sick and vomiting. I could not

I also had female weakness, inflammation of ovaries, painful menstruaing of the external parts, and ulceration of the womb. I have had all these complaints.

The pains I had to stand were something dreadful. My husband told me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, which I did, and after taking it for a while, was cured. No other kind of medicine for me as long as you make Compound. I hope every woman who suffers will take your Compound and be cured .- MRS. J. S. McGILLAS, 113 Kilburn avenue, Rockford, Ill.

A Magnificent Road.

It is a revelation to most people to know that such railway equipment exists south of the Ohio River as that of the Queen and Crescent Route. The block system; electric equipment, such as track signals, electric headlights, and crossing gongs; together with a perfectly lined, rock-ballasted roadbed, all provide for the swift and safe movement of passenger trains of the most uxurious pattern. The New Orleans and Florida Limited leaves Cincinnati over the Queen and Crescent Route daily, on schedules which each year are made a little shorter, through scenery which is unsurpassed. . C.
